National Institutes of Health (NIH), (http://www.nih.gov)

This notice provides updated information regarding the salary limitation for NIH grant and cooperative agreement awards and extramural research and development contract awards (referred to here as grants). On February 22, 2007 NIH published Fiscal Year (FY) 2007 information on the salary limitation in the NIH Guide for Grants and Contracts (NOT-OD-06-031).

Every year since 1990 Congress has legislatively mandated a provision limiting the direct salary that an individual may receive under an NIH grant. For FY 2008, Public Law 110-161: Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2008 restricts the amount of direct salary to Executive Level I of the Federal Executive Pay scale. The Executive Level I annual salary rate was $186,600 for the period January 1 through December 31, 2007. Effective January 1, 2008, the Executive Level I salary level increased to $191,300.

Guidance on other legislative mandates contained in P.L. 110-161 will be issued in the near future.

For the purposes of the salary limitation, the terms "direct salary," "salary," and "institutional base salary" have the same meaning and are exclusive of fringe benefits and facilities and administrative (F&A) expenses, also referred to as indirect costs. An individual's institutional base salary is the annual compensation that the applicant organization pays for an individual's appointment, whether that individual's time is spent on research, teaching, patient care, or other activities. Base salary excludes any income that an individual may be permitted to earn outside of the duties to the applicant organization.

NIH grant/contract awards for applications/proposals that request direct salaries of individuals in excess of the applicable RATE per year will be adjusted in accordance with the legislative salary limitation and will include a notification such as the following: None of the funds in this award shall be used to pay the salary of an individual at a rate in excess of the current salary cap.

This is the eighth year that the limitation has been linked to Executive Level I of the Federal Pay Scale. Please see the salary cap summary and the time frames associated with salary caps at http://grants.nih.gov/grants/policy/salcap_summary.htm.

Implementation of new salary limitation:

- No adjustments will be made to modular grant applications/awards or to previously established commitment levels for non-competing grant awards issued with FY 2008 funds.
- NIH competing grant awards with categorical budgets reflecting salary levels at or above the new cap(s) issued in FY 2008 will reflect adjustments to the current and all future years so that no funds are awarded or committed for salaries over the limitation.
- For awards issued in those years restricted to Executive Level I (see Salary Cap Summary, FY 1990 – FY 2008), if adequate funds are available in active awards, and if the salary cap increase is consistent with the institutional base salary, grantees may rebudget to accommodate the current Executive Level I salary level and contractors may charge at the higher level. However, no additional funds will be provided to the prior year grant awards and the total estimated cost of the contract will not be modified.
- An individual's base salary, per se, is NOT constrained by the legislative provision for a limitation of salary. The rate limitation simply limits the amount that may be awarded and charged to NIH grants and contracts. An institution may pay an individual's salary amount in excess of the salary cap with non-federal funds.
- The salary limitation does NOT apply to payments made to consultants under an NIH grant or contract although, as with all costs, those payments must meet the test of reasonableness and be consistent with institutional policy.
- The salary limitation provision DOES apply to subawards/subcontracts for substantive work under an NIH grant or contract.

COMPETING grant applications and contract proposals that include a categorical breakdown in the budget figures/business proposal should continue to reflect the actual institutional base salary of all individuals for whom reimbursement is requested. In lieu of actual base salary, however, applicants/offerors may elect to provide an explanation indicating that actual institutional base salary exceeds the current salary limitation. When this information is provided, NIH staff will make necessary adjustments to requested salaries prior to award.

From: Shirley Mitchell, Accounting Manager, Contract & Grant Accounting, HSC

Subject: NIH Salary Cap - Effort Certification Period of July to December 2009

To be in compliance with the Federal Office of Management and Budget’s Circular A-21, each grant must have an effort certification on file to demonstrate to auditors that effort committed in the proposal was actually performed and charged on the Contract or Grant. As part of the certification process, UNM is required to certify that salaries charged to NIH awards do not exceed the established NIH salary cap. I am sending this letter to you because:

   a. You have been identified as having been paid from an NIH award, and
   b. Your salary exceeded the annual NIH salary cap of $196,700 ($98,350 for this 6-month time period*).

I am asking you to certify that only the allowable portion of your salary was charged to an NIH award(s). The NIH awards are summarized below for your reference. Any amount above the NIH salary cap is considered salary subsidy by UNM.

Please return the signed letter to the following address on or before March 24, 2010:

Subject: Effort Certifications for July – December 2009

Attached is a report of exempt employees who received payment for work performance on a particular Contract or Grant during the period of July 1, 2009 through December 31, 2009. To be in compliance with the Federal Office of Management and Budget's Circular A-21, each grant must have an effort certification on file to demonstrate to auditors that effort committed in the proposal was actually performed and charged on the Contract or Grant. I am sending the effort certifications directly to your attention because:

a. You have been identified as having an NIH award, and
b. Your salary exceeded the annual NIH salary cap of $196,700 ($98,350 for this 6-month time period*).

In addition to reviewing and signing each effort certification, I am asking you to also certify that only the allowable portion of your salary was charged to your NIH award(s). Your NIH awards have been summarized below for your reference. Any amount above the NIH salary cap is considered salary subsidy by UNM.

When signing an effort certification, you are certifying that the gross amount of earnings listed for the employee is a "reasonably accurate approximation of effort applied and charged". Work which is not certified is subject to disallowance. If the effort certification report is not correct, note the correction on the original effort certification report and request a labor redistribution. After the effort certification report has been certified, the charges cannot be redistributed.

Please return the signed certifications and this letter to the following address on or before March 24, 2010:
