

ALL UNIVERSITY MESSAGE

Dear members of the UNM community,

Following my message earlier today, I know there are many questions about operations and work schedules in the upcoming weeks.

Effective Tuesday, March 17, UNM will be implementing limited operations for our university, which will entail reducing the services offered and the number of employees physically present on UNM campuses. Monday will be a regular workday, during which employees will be notified of potential remote work schedules and expectations. UNM employees are a critical and valued part of our community and will continue to be compensated during this period of limited operations.

Also, during this period our student housing will remain open and dining services will be available. Our focus will remain on student welfare and success.

Please be patient as guidelines and details are developed. As always, please continue to refer to UNM's COVID-19 informational website for the most recent updates and University responses regarding COVID-19 and its impact upon our community.
