

CATALOGUED REPORTS AND MANUSCRIPTS AT THE MAXWELL MUSEUM OF ANTHROPOLOGY
UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO

Updated to May 5, 2011

The Maxwell Museum is reorganizing its archives to make it easier to identify and find documents. The following partial list of documents is provided for the convenience of researchers. The list will be expanded as reorganization of the archives continues. Because the list is provided in PDF format, it is searchable.

The collection priorities for the Maxwell Museum's document archives include:

- Documents relating directly to collections or activities at the museum, or that are especially useful in the identification or interpretation of items in the collections.
- Documents published or otherwise created by the museum, including those created by the Office of Contract Archeology.
- Cultural Resource Management (CRM) reports for Kirtland Air Force Base, for which the museum serves as a repository.
- Anthropological documents created by individuals affiliated with the museum or the Department of Anthropology, UNM.
- Miscellaneous anthropological documents that would otherwise be unavailable to UNM's scholarly community.

Formerly, the museum archives also emphasized CRM reports from New Mexico. The Center for Southwestern Research, Zimmerman Library (UNM special collections) has begun collecting such reports and as time allows, the museum is transferring CRM reports to the Center if the reports are unrelated to its collections. Some reports listed in this list will, in time, be available at the Center instead.

A complete review of the Maxwell's document holdings requires a search of the collections database and a physical check of holdings, some of which are not yet catalogued. Documents shown as being in the museum's photo archives are available through the Photo Archivist, Catherine Baudoin (cbaudoin@unm.edu). All other documents listed below are available through the Curator of Archaeology, David Phillips (dap@unm.edu). Please report errors and ideas for improvement to David Phillips.
