

Today's agenda

- Announcements
- Wagner, chapter 3
 - The nature of organizations and application to international relations
 - Bargaining and Costly Delay
 - Bargaining and War
 - Organization and violence

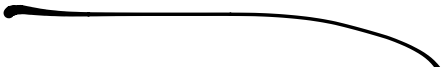

Next Week:

- For Tuesday: NO CLASS (as per schedule)
- No office hours
 - I will post a voice-over-white-board presentation regarding last lecture's method of estimating preferences in the IIG
- For Thursday, April 5
 - Phase 4 due
 - Read and be prepared to discuss Troubetzkoy chs. 9-16
 - I will return Essay 1 on the Crimean War
 - I will give the assignment regarding Essay 2 on the Crimean War

The nature of organizations and application to international relations

- Three sets of expectations among different kinds of actors
 1. Expectations between Leaders (economic predators) and Followers (prey) in one organization
 2. Expectations among Leaders in one organization
 3. Expectations among Leaders across organizations
 4. [NOT WAGNER]: Is there a set of expectations among "followers" globally?
- Discussion: Relate this to the phrase "internal hierarchy and external anarchy".

Bargaining and Costly Delay

- In-class activity 1

- Rubenstein Model (alternating offers)

	2	1
2	0	1
1	2	play again

IS lots of conflict

Bargaining and War

- How are labor union strikes and war related?
- How are they different?

Organization and violence

- Wagner stresses that organization (on both sides) is necessary for war, as opposed to riots.
- He then argues that wars occur because of changes in expectations between different types of actors. Discuss three types of war that can result given his argument. Give examples with tie-ins to what the changes in expectations were.