

Southwest Seminar in Early Modern Philosophy
27 - 28 February 2010
University of New Mexico
Albuquerque, NM

Featuring Invited Speaker:
Steven Nadler
University of Wisconsin, Madison

We are pleased to announce that the fifth annual meeting of the Southwest Seminar in Early Modern Philosophy will be held 27 - 28 February 2010 at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, NM. Following the model of similar seminars around the U.S. and Canada, the Southwest Seminar was formed to foster interaction among scholars who work on various topics in the history of early modern philosophy (a period ranging, roughly, from Montaigne to Kant).

Call for Abstracts
Submission Deadline: 1 November 2009

Papers on any subject in early modern philosophy are welcome for presentation. Reading times should be approximately 45 minutes.

Abstracts of no more than 750 words must be received by 1 November 2009 to ensure consideration. Email submissions are highly encouraged and can be sent to Mary Domski at mdomski@unm.edu. Abstracts should be prepared for blind review and sent in either .doc or .rtf format. If you do not receive confirmation of receipt of your abstract within a week, please resubmit or contact the organizers. The program for the Southwest Seminar will be announced by the end of December.

For further information, please visit our web site:
<http://www.unm.edu/~mdomski/swseminar10.html>