The politics of logic: On the consequences of formalism

Table of contents

Preface

I. Introductory

1. Introduction: An Inquiry into Forms of Life
   Formalization and the Politics of Logic
   I. Badiou’s generic and the One-All
   II. Plato’s Cratylus; Wittgenstein and forms of life
   III. Continental philosophy and the problem of nomothesis
   IV. Frege, Cantor, Russell: paradoxes and hierarchy
   V. Consistency vs. Completeness. Inclosure and Paradoxico-Criticism
   VI. Badiou and the infinite. Cantor and the Absolute. “Limitation of Size”
   VII. 4 Orientations in thought (first look)
   VIII. Political Implications of Formalism

2. Agamben, Badiou, and Russell
   I. Russell’s paradox
   II. Axiomatizations of set theory: theory of types, constructivism
   III. Agamben: exception, example. Schmitt.
   IV. Badiou and the event. Auto-nomination. Cantor’s Continuum hypothesis.
   V. Agamben on Badiou

2. Paradoxico-Criticism

3. Origins of Paradoxico-Criticism: Structuralism and Analytic Philosophy
   I. Structuralism
      Saussure
      Lévi-Strauss
      Benveniste
Lacan
Miller and Paradoxico-Criticism

II. Analytic Philosophy
Carnap
Quine

4. Derrida and Formal Logic: Formalizing the Undecidable
I. Derrida and the Undecidable (Mallarme)
II. Undecidability and syntax
III. Undecidability and deconstruction; in-closure and the Other

5. Deleuze, Plato, and the Paradoxes of Sense
I. Deleuze and Sense: paradoxes
II. The sterility of sense
III. Structuralism: non-parallelism of signifier/signified
IV. Singularities and sense-events
V. Ideas and the Virtual. Plato
VI. ‘Political’ Conclusions

6. Wittgenstein and Parmenides
I. Parmenides’ argument and the Tractatus
II. ‘Resolute” interpretation
III. From early to late Wittgenstein: rules and force
IV. Wittgenstein and Russell’s paradox
V. Wittgenstein from Criteriology to Paradoxico-criticism

7. Wittgenstein and Turing
I. Wittgenstein on infinity and finitude of language. Turing’s proof.
II. Wittgenstein on Gödel
III. Wittgenstein, Gödel, and computationalism
IV. Wittgenstein and the “logical machine”
V. Wittgenstein and instrumental rationality: ‘critical theory’ of information technology

-Short summary of Paradoxico-Criticism

3. Badiou and the stakes of Formalism

8. Formalism and the Real: the many worlds of Badiou

Paradoxico-critical vs. Generic: First look

I. Being, Knowledge, Truth: Lacan and Badiou
II. Badiou’s Logics of Worlds
III. Worlds or World? Languages or language?

9. Badiou vs. Paradoxico-Criticism

I. Badiou contra Derrida
II. Badiou contra Deleuze
III. Badiou contra Wittgenstein

10. (Paradoxico-) Critique of Badiou

The futures of criticism and the consequences of formalism

I. Badiou and paradoxico-criticism; Badiou and constructivism
II. The four orientations of thought (second look)
III. Relative merits of the orientations

11. Elements of a Politics of Logic (projected)

I. Beyond culture, before nature
II. Against idealism, against materialism
III. Reading the century: formalism and capital