

Lisa Gerber bio

Lisa Gerber holds a Ph.D. in Philosophy. Her specialization is in environmental philosophy especially in environmental ethics and in religion and ecology. Since the Fall of 2005, she has been a Lecturer in the Religious Studies Program and the Philosophy Department. She teaches a variety of undergraduate courses including World Religion, Eastern Religion, and Critical Thinking. Her upper division courses include Environmental Ethics and Religion & Ecology. Her current research is on the environmental issues in New Mexico including the reintroduction of the Mexican Gray Wolf, water issues, sustainable agriculture, and environmental justice.