

LAT-net

LATIN American NETWORK in Government and
Public Policy

THE UNIVERSITY of
NEW MEXICO

FOUNDATION

LATIN AMERICAN NETWORK IN GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC POLICY

City of Albuquerque, New Mexico, USA
September 10 -13, 2008

How Networking Can Promote Social Justice

The City of Albuquerque is the place for the formal foundation of the Latin American Network.

The University of New Mexico and the Latin American Network in Government and Public Policy will host participants from Latin American Universities; federal, and local government officials; scholars, professional associations and teachers' union leaders; who will come together to learn network and exchange new ideas about current and best practices in the field. Through plenary sessions led by distinguished speakers, panels, roundtables, poster sessions and book presentations, attendees will experience first-hand leadership skills to increase and promote social justice in Latin America.

The Latin American Network is a nonprofit community of professionals and scholars from government and academia dedicated to advance in social government and best practices in public policy

Information and Registration Online at: www.unm.edu/~solai